“ Africa, I turned 45 on Sunday and this the first birthday without you calling to annoy me and trying to make me get excited about it being my birthday. My heart aches everyday, that I am unable to call you and annoy being the bratty and mean little sister I've always been. I know you're in a much better place but I miss you like crazy. I never had to be without you and I am finding it really hard to get use to this. The plans we were making for 24 and it turned out to be a complete nightmare!! Well.. I'll have you know I did not give up on my Masters program. Although I came close to abandoning it after your passing. Mom kept saying finish what you started, then I remembered you would always tell me that too. So, I dug deep and now I am at the tail end of the program. This, has probably been one of the hardest things I have had to work through. All I had was my sisters, we went from 4 to 3 and now we are a duo. How??? I will miss you forever you have always been one of my favorite people. My counselor, my advisor, how will I navigate the rest of this journey without you?? It was really hard on Amaury and I feel sorry for him. I wish things were different but we have to accept it for what it is. My heart is broken and some days are better than others. You left a huge void behind.

Hey Africa, I just finished watching your service today. You know you and I became close friends during the two weeks you trained me at my job. We stayed in touch over the years but today as watched your home going service , the nick name you gave me came to mind “Charlie”. I remember you saying it in a way only you could. I made every effort to see you off in person but my mind just wouldn’t let me get the information needed so I could journey in person but nothing stopped me from attending virtual and I’m so glad I did. Yes, I knew you were loved but today I really saw nothing but love for you. I know you’re at peace and having nothing but joy being surrounded by angels and our Heavenly Father. Just know I miss you and love you.

“ Md. Africa you will be sorely missed. I know I'll miss seeing you come by the dealership and just catch up. I followed you on fb and girl, you always had me crying. You were always a beacon of light and always positive. God allowed us to have you for a time, but he has other plans for you. Go on and walk around heaven all day and I will be seeing you one day. Much love charlene

My niece you left us too early. The pain we are having is heavy; yet, only God has the last say in it. I believe God will give us all strength to carry on. May the Lord receive you in his kingdom 🙏. Love you niece ❤️💖💖💖 RIP 🙏
