“ Von was an incredibly talented individual who touched our hearts as we worked together at the auto shop, often bringing laughter with his sense of humor. It's hard to believe he passed away over a year ago; his absence is truly felt, as he often shared stories about his family and his life journey. Reflecting on our time together, I realize how much I learned from his wise perspective. His passing reminds us all of the fragility of life and the importance of making amends before it's too late. He will always be missed.

“ You have a daughter name Meriah that you never owned, and denied for years. When my mom dated you, you beat us with a green bat while she was at work that you called "Mr. Ouchy". You once called my sister in from playing outside, just to throw a football at her head. To this day, she talks about how much it hurt, and how confusing it was that you did that.

The day we ran away from you, I saw you stealing from my mom's purse again. You would take money and buy drugs. And you would hit my mother. I use to cry for people to save us from you. When my mom took us away from you, we had to leave everything behind. And you sold everything. Our video games, clothes, jewelry from our dad. Everything.

You use to threaten me saying, "If I told anyone how you treated us, you would hurt my family".

Today, I googled your name, because you crossed my mind.

I will never forget how you treated us. And I will never forget your name.

P.S.

Your daughter Meriah is one of the smartest and most beautiful young women you never knew. A college graduate, she's getting married in January to a great man that we all love who is so smart and kind. They have a beautiful life, and are so loved by so many friends and family.

You missed out.
